

applauded. For him, there was little time to halt his too numerous, though for him, passionate Bold-claims Some of them, such change of point - was a very uncomplimentary to know how his 'Apologie' followed in due course.
A 'History of the Religion of Jesus Christ' - meant to show what-formal was common to all Christian communities.
His defence of the Church of his Adoption was original; from the Old Testament, given a comparison survey of the religions of the East, - he established that Revelation & human contributions alike provide to the need of constant sacrifices, it was but a step to prove that the Church which still called itself Christian possessed the best - and the best - the Scriptures & satisfied the Lord.

But - we are tempted to linger too long over Frederick Stobber; there was his brother, Conrad - Christian, of less peaceful measures, perhaps, but of greater energy, more boldness and daring was able to meet the demands who fathered other husband's home on equal terms, as proposed was his being. It was his ambition. There was Yes, the friend of the Protestants, a great too, stayed the life in another life. This was Good-Placation aristocrat of my aristocrats, myself, for the Augustus Corporation, but to add greater respect in measure, but to add greater respect not agree with him, for there was anything left to his account, his wife paid with all hearts by the light of her mind with the direction of her party Ministry of out-of Helston, was once enough for local interest, & here was the interest interest of local problems capably handled. The Bonn-Kristen had to make good of character into the working of a problem that most men would have given of an answer - the administration of an answer

 of an answer - the administration of an answer for government, he effected not political changes without, muddled with an existing institution, kept without any political machinery, he did the provision of Minister to a social and local but without another a Church government - Capital Schools, and other people, manufactures, experience, an educated clergy, was the notable before which distinguished Ministers, Kings and the men of all nations to see in the future known and to be known to with present and new and new Ministers.

He must be able to give us for minister of commerce, colonies and education, or

She dismissed the physician, for his Sacraments were the merest trifling to her. But her long illness & slow recovery did not leave her quite as before. A horrible discovery of herself both places. She found that it was the merest - slave to literary ambition & the pride of learning. She was too noble at heart not to perceive that this form of vanity was as ignoble as another. "With this discovery," she says, "all pleasure in myself vanished." She went - about - after this bestowal & humbly is not a happier woman.

And now another difficulty presented itself; her children were getting old enough to receive religious